BADLY INJURED AT O. D. MINE

F. H. Eddy, a miner at the Old Dominion, was badly injured by a blast in B shaft Sunday morning. The accident occurred about half past ten. His skull was fractured and his face and limbs fearfully lacerated by the whirling rocks.

He and four other men had been working in the shaft, and when a blast went off prematurely Mr. Eddy and Joe B. Walls were standing dangerously close. Upon seeing his companion thrown to the ground Mr. Walls, who had fortunately escaped without a scratch, ran forward to his assistance. Dr. Holt of the Old Dominion hospital was summoned and yesterday evening reported a favorable progress.

National Idiosyncrasies

It is interesting to note the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman and the American carry their gold, silver, copper and paper money all loose in their trousers pocket, pull out a handful in an open way, and select the piece they need.

The American, when he does carry a pocketbook, places his "wad of bills" in a long, narrow affair (sometimes called a wallet, in which the greenbacks lie flat.

The Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishable characteristics. The German uses one gaily embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottechen.

The capitalist from some torrid South American port carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen of the light fingered class. Some of these belts are very expensive.

The Italian of the poorer class ties up his little fortune in a gaily colored handkerchief, secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious fashion about his clothes.

A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings.

Many American men deem the carrying of a pocketbook to indicate a parsimonious nature on the part of the owner. "A good fellow," it has been said, "always carries his money in his pocket."

SILVER BELT WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

Woeful Misinterpretation That the effect of a choice and appropriate phrase is sometimes lost and oftentimes woefully misinterpreted is well illustrated in an incident connected with the death of a Virginia lawyer.

During the man's illness the wires were disconnected which attached the bell to the old-fashioned pull knob on the front door.

A messenger boy came to the house one morning and began pulling at the bell. There was no response. He continued to jerk the ancient knob vigorously. A white haired gentleman finally appeared, who raised his hand warningly and said:

"My boy, the silver cord has been severed."

"Is that so?" exploded the boy. "From the way it acted I thought the whole darn thing was busted."

Race for a Widow

In "A Race for a Widow," which appeared at the Elks' theater last evening, the people who attended the theater in Parsnns were given the opportunity of seeing a clever piece put on by one of the cleverest companies that has been here this season.

The story of the play hinges around the efforts of a fairly honest gentleman in keeping secret the fact that he has carried on a flirtation with an American widow. There is the ever-present mother-in-law, a number of other relatives and a real "Cholly boy." It was one of the best balanced attractions that has been here this season.

The members of the company were exceedingly well costumed, the scenery was good, and the whole production was of a quiet, refined nature, without the usual necessity of resorting to the clatter of men in cows' clothing, or similar devices, to produce a laugh.—Sun, Parsons, Kan., October 24.

In the Police Courts

B. L. Perry and Louis Talbert were arrested by Officer Pearson, charged with vagrancy, and were piled into Judge Thomas' court yesterday afternoon. Their trials have been set for Tuesday and Wednesday respectively.

W. M. Allison is alleged to have been found striking and kicking the 16-year-old son of A. McKenzie at the Inspiration mine Sunday. His trial is set for 10 o'clock this morning before Judge Thomas.

If you are lost follow anybody; you will bring up at The Dime.

New Plays by Stock Company

"Human Hearts," a highly-wrought melodrama, was produced at Dreamland Sunday matinee and night to audiences that must have looked good to the McDonald Stock company. This pulmonary exposition was replete with sensations.

"The Burglar and the Wait" like-wise lived up to its cognomen, and was well attended yesterday evening. All of the players were equally commendable. They will be seen tonight in "The Charity Ball," a famous old comedy-drama by Belasco and DeMille.
